

MOVE over WORLD

Make a Difference Where You Live

What has 360,000 legs and does good things in every community in Virginia?

The 180,000 Virginia 4-H'ers.

We are the youth development organization of Virginia Cooperative Extension, a part of Virginia Tech and Virginia State universities. Extension provides scientific information that citizens can use to improve their lives at work and home. Virginia Cooperative Extension agents work with volunteer leaders to create 4-H programs that help youth and help them contribute to their communities.

We enjoy doing things for our communities. We are some of the first to help by visiting hospitals and nursing homes, working at fundraising events, being in community parades and festivals, and in many more ways.

4-H  Motto
To Make the Best Better

I'm Going To Change The World

Join 4-H  18 U.S.C. 707

* 18 U.S.C. 707

Be a 4-H leader.

If you know an adult who might help youngsters do something for themselves and their community, ask them to become a leader of a 4-H club.

Virginia Cooperative Extension will help volunteer leaders, providing the support of an agent who is trained in youth development. There is training to help volunteers learn to lead youngsters.

 18 U.S.C. 707*

For additional information on 4-H and Virginia Cooperative Extension visit our website at:
<http://www.ext.vt.edu/resources/4h/>

Contact your Virginia Cooperative Extension agent.

Virginia Cooperative Extension

VIRGINIA STATE UNIVERSITY

www.ext.vt.edu

Produced by Communications and Marketing, College of Agriculture and Life Sciences,
Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University

Publication 388-585

Virginia Cooperative Extension programs and employment are open to all, regardless of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, political beliefs, sexual orientation, or marital or family status. An equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Issued in furtherance of Cooperative Extension work, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Virginia State University, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture cooperating. Mark A. McCann, Director, Virginia Cooperative Extension, Virginia Tech, Blacksburg; Alma C. Hobbs, Administrator, 1890 Extension Program, Virginia State, Petersburg.

Have We got a deal for you!

If you are between the ages of 5 and 19 ... call the Virginia Cooperative Extension 4-H Youth agent in your county. The telephone number is often listed on the County government page in the Blue Section of the telephone directory, under Extension.

Join 4-H

Being in 4-H gives you a chance to learn about subjects ranging from citizenship to electric energy to water and energy conservation. You can learn about the things that are important to you and to your communities.

Learn with your friends.

4-H'ers get together in different kinds of clubs. Community clubs meet at a home or a neighborhood building and the members each work on a project that interests them. Project clubs are groups in which everyone is learning about the same topic. Some members get together in special interest groups and Virginia schools often use 4-H materials to enrich classroom programs. 4-H is based at Virginia Tech and Virginia State universities — the state's land-grant universities — and project materials come from experts at the universities. The information is up-to-date and based on research. Youth between 5 and 8 years old can be part of a Cloverbud group. They have special activities designed just for them.

You can make a difference where you live.

Citizenship is an important part of 4-H. Throughout its more than 80 year history, 4-H has been a leader in doing things to help the community. Today's 4-H members are becoming involved in a wide variety of activities that will change our world – and make it better.

4-H Pledge

I pledge:

My head to clearer thinking,
My heart to greater loyalty,
My hands to larger service, and
My health to better living

For my club, my community, my country, and my world.

 18 U.S.C. 707*